

Cookies

What are Cookies?

Cookies are text files that use small data units to help a website remember who you are. Allowing cookies can enable things like a website visit more customized to your preferences.

Do I Have Any Control Over Cookies?

Yes, you can change your web browser (example browsers: Chrome, Firefox, Internet Explorer, Edge, Safari) settings to limit the cookies a website associates with your browsing activity. For example, you can visit a website with extra enhanced privacy (but less customization) by visiting the website in your web browser's private or incognito mode.

For additional plain language detail about what cookies are and how to disable them, you may find it helpful to visit the website cookiesandyou.com.

Your bridge to the world.

United States • Canada • Europe • Australia

